BIG TOBACCO DEAL.

Green River Association Sells 20,000,000 Pounds. Brings $9, $6 and $3.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 8.—One of the largest tobacco deals ever consummated in Western Kentucky was closed today in Owensboro, when the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association disposed of practically 20,000,000 pounds of dark leaf tobacco, ranging in prices of from $9 to $6 for leaf and $3 for leaf and $3 for leaf.

The purchase will amount to about $1,750,000, and has been pending for some time. A meeting has been called of the growers for November 12, at which time the action of the board of control will be ratified or rejected. If it is ratified the deliveries of the weed will begin on November 15. The board of control is of the opinion that the price this year is an improvement over last year's figures. The purchasers are the American Tobacco Company, Imperial Tobacco Company, James Hodge, Richard O'Flynn, S. T. Burns and the Gallaher, Limited.

The American Tobacco Company is the largest purchaser. It is to receive nearly 10,000,000 pounds. Davess county is credited with having 10,000,000 pounds pledged in the pool; Ohio county 2,000,000 pounds; McLean county 4,500,000 pounds; Hancock county 1,800,000 pounds.

The Davess county Burley growers today also closed a deal with the American Tobacco Company for the sale of 3,000,000 pounds of Burley at a price of $14 for leaf and $7 for trash. The district meeting of the American Society of Equity was in session behind closed doors in Owensboro this afternoon. The Equity Society some time ago fixed the top price for leaf at $10, but it is thought that a meeting of the growers will be called at an early date and they will recede from the former action. The Home Warehouse Company, of Davess county, and the A. S. of E. control 9,000,000 pounds of tobacco, and it is believed they will close a deal within the next few days.

Judge Settle wins by a handsome majority, carrying twelve of the sixteen counties in the second appellate district, and with a plurality of 3,482 over Judge Dean, with only Meade county missing. Judge Warner E. Settle is elected to succeed himself as Appellate Judge from this district.

Bride Was Deaf.
At a marriage service performed
some time ago in a little country
church in Berkshire, when the minister said in solemn tones, "Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" Instead of the woman answering for herself, a gruff man's voice answered:
"O! will."
Again the minister looked up surprised, not knowing what to make of it, when one of the groomsmen at the end of the row said:
"He be deaf. O! he be answerin' for her."—London Telegraph.

TIDY-TUN
"DISCOVERY."
A Contrivance That Mothers Will Heartily Appreciate.
THEY'RE FOUND IN MENUS.

Delicacies About Which the Average Woman Has Only a Hazy Notion—A
"Mildoon's" For Women—No Patient Permitted to Talk of Ailments.
Dear Eliza—I know how it annoys
you to have the children throw things about their hats, caps and toys—no
while playing with a friend recently I hit upon a "discovery" that you will appreciate and probably adopt for your own comfort. The three harum scarum boys in my friend's family called the contrivance the "tidy-tun." What was it? Nothing more I guess than a small barrel, that a girl has standing in her hall closet corner. It is a trifling affair that saves a woman a trouble and great steps, besides. It teaches the boys the value of tidiness. The little girl has a sense of something doing drawn (tidy) over her head in place by the upper hand of her. In it are deposited all the things which will easily admit of good tidiness of all sorts, but through which it would be well nigh impossible to get them out again.
Into this barrel are slipped all the belongings left littered up the bedrooms or found scattered in dining room and living room after the youngsters have left for school or gone to bed. In the tidy-tun they remain in spite of the direct need and ferret
hunting until the monthly thorough sweeping days come around, when the tidy-tun is opened and the contents

distributed to the delinquent owners
on their promise to be less disorderly
next month.
Many are the favorite pencils and ink erasers, the gay and sporty neckties, swallowed up by the tidy-tun and deep the anguish of the lad who sees his property disappear thereby. But the little barrel has worked wonders, so the boy's mother told me, in including habits of tidiness in the household.
What They Are.
In answer to your appeal for the information regarding some of the delicacies which are often referred to in menus and recipes about which you are rather hazy in your mind, I would say that you are not alone in this gas-tronomic fog. Most women know in a general way about all of these things,
but here is a little additional information for you concerning them:
Anchovy, for instance, is a small fish which comes from the Mediterranean. It is freed from bones, split and salted and put up in glass jars and is called fillet of anchovy. It has a high flavor and is used as an appetizer or as a garnish for some salads.
Caviar is another highly flavored delicacy used as an appetizer. It is made from the roe of certain large fish, which are preserved by salting.
It is served on small pieces of toast
with finely chopped onion and mixed hard boiled eggs and lemon.
"Chervil" is a garden herb like young parsley. It is of a delicious flavor and is used in salads and soups.
Chives are slim green onion tops
with a mild flavor. They are excellent for flavoring soups, sauces and salads and some kinds of cheese.
Truffles are a species of fungus which are found only in France. They grow several inches underground and when fresh have a strongly aromatic flavor. They are usually sold in cans or glass bottles.
Chutney is an East Indian hot sweet pickle made from coconut, chilies and other articles.
Curry powder is a yellow powder,
the principal ingredient of which is turmeric. It is a product of India and is a high seasoning for Indian dishes,
such as curry of chicken, veal, lobster,
and so forth. Here endeth the first lesson.
For Woman's Nerves.
Did you ever hear of so many women breaking down nervously as they do at the present time? Well, yesterday I want to see one of the latest or my neurotic acquaintances and found that she had gone to a sanitarium where women receive the treatment of the same kind of treatment
that is given the men at the Muldoon's establishment in New Jersey. Every day the women patients assemble in the gymnasium and cure their scattered nerves by exercises which, in the case of the most professed, eliminate the tension of their heads, venting
the "horses" or walking on their hands, according to the strength of the pupil.
The patients are taught to breathe.
The opening ceremony is called "pumping," which is a sort of abdominal breathing. Even patients too ill to leave their beds are taught to lie
there and "pump."
The director claims that half the nervous troubles of womenkind are caused by inefficient breathing and that if the lungs are allowed an opportunity to purify the blood many ailments will be remedied. In the same way he

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable
by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.
Kidney trouble preys upon the mind,
discourages and lessens ambition; beauty,
vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear
when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.
Kidney trouble has been so prevalent
that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds
the flesh, if when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.
Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble,
and both need the same great remedy.
The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may get a sample bottle, simply by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about it.
Including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer, Rt. 2, Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Do not make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr.
J. C. Kilmer, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

gives particular attention to the muscles of the abdomen. With this end in view comes the "sitters" exercise.
The patient, it seems, lies at full length
on one side and makes her legs resemble a most active pair of scissors. After the maximum period of rest follows, when the patients use in playing tennis, boating and swimming.
The real fun of the day begins when the patients assemble for circus tricks
in the ring.
Besides this, there are long country
walks, for the "Muldoon's" women are located on an estate of nearly 300 acres, and no matter how poorly one of the guests may feel, with all the outdoor life she soon ceases to look like a invalid or better still, ceases to remember that she is one.
At mealtime there is no special regim-
en for any one to follow, I am told.
It is suggested that the very sick should abstain from pork and pie, but otherwise there is no dieting. Conversationally there is no strong rule. No patient is permitted to discuss her ailments or miseries with any other patient at meal or any other time. Possibly this is one of the reasons that these invalids recover so quickly.
I am sending a suggestion for the wedding gown of the business girl you know who has little to spend on her trousseau. It is developed in this crepe de chine, with an overdress of chiffon crossing over the waist and finishing in points with tassels of silk and pearl beads. Fine lace trims the waist and sleeves and looks very delicate underneath the silky chiffon.
The gown fits closely and is narrow at the bottom of the skirt. The latter forms the giraffe and is also laced around the short sleeves. This gown may be made for $15.75 as computed by MABEL.

A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 25 years.

Old Gowns Made Over.
Don't consign last year's gown to the wrack bag! Make it over. That is, convert a little incompetently and add a little new material and thereby evolve a new frock.
The princess gown can play the part of a foundation for this year's model.
Trim the bodice or net or chiffon over the old form. Introduce a new yoke and sub-cuffs. Incorporate a square of lace with the material and embellish
it with silk and beads.
Slip a gathered straight tunic over the skirt and edge it with a band of net or satin. Repeat the embroidered motif at the bottom of the skirt and so on, adding a touch here and taking away a piece there.
Never let a frock of other days go to waste. You can always build a new one on the old foundation.
Old blouses can be covered with a kimono slip of chiffon. Lace can be used for tunics or for underslips; silk can be combined with tulle or net. You need only keep your eyes wide open,
and with a quick hand you can construct a new frock.
It is quite like the promise made to Abraham that the exchange old lamps for new, isn't it?

By JAMES A. EIGHTON.
In the language of the vernacular, it has been some campaign. It has been several surprises, and election day will probably bring out a job lot of new ones. It is no small stake that is up. Not only every seat in the house of representatives, and therefore the control of that body, depends upon the cast, but thirty United States senators, more or less, and governors in a majority of the states. Bigger than all of these, the result on Nov. 8 will have not a little to do in determining the outcome of the presidential election in 1912.

This article is in no sense an attempted prophecy. There are enough prophecies at least in their own minds to fill the papers with guesses without any addition on my part. Moreover, the thing is so nearly over that a prognostication would no more than work off its prediction than the result would hob up to confound him. Let the campaign managers be the oracles. That is their business. They have to secure just to show that they are not scared. Nobody pays much attention to them, but they feel in duty bound to claim the earth and the offices thereof. For the rest of us there are more serious business. We have to vote. It is our turn now, and we well up not a little as we reflect that we have the last word.

Notwithstanding the congressional election much of the popular interest has centered in the gubernatorial fights in a number of the leading states. New York has been most in the calcium rays perhaps, not only because of her size, but for the reason that Colonel Roosevelt's personality has been literally hurled into the canvass. There has been some mention of the opposing candidates, Stimson and Dix, it is true, but where their names have been whispered once the colonel's has been shouted ten times either in applause or obloquy.

Of course, both sides, following T. R.'s lead, say they have their opponents "beaten to a frazzle." What else could they be expected to say? As to the voters, they have been too much amused by the noise to do much prophesying. Where they have ventured an opinion of the result their prognostications have generally followed their party bias. If we depend on money to talk, the betting odds supporters confidently predict his election as governor. The progressives swept the Kansas primaries, triumphantly re-nominating Walter Roscoe Stubbs for governor. It is said that the railroads, secretaries and standstillers have made a secret organization to defeat Stimson. Over the line in Nebraska the question of county option is the chief issue. James C. Dahman, the "cow boy mayor" of Omaha, is the Democratic candidate for governor. Dahman says he will veto a county option bill. For this reason W. A. Bryan has bolted his nomination. The Democrats in present have the governor and legislature, but the result this year is very much in doubt.

House May Be Close.
As to the national house of representatives, both congressional chiefs-men claim it by a large majority. A New York magazine recently made a canvass of the situation that it said extended into every doubtful district in the land and as a result of which it predicted practically a tie, with thirteen districts uncertain. If the house should be close the insurgents would be in a commanding position, as they have nominated something like fifty candidates, most of whom are reasonably sure of election. It is generally admitted that both the Democrats and insurgents will be the gals in the house, the only question being as to the size of these gals.

The same condition applies to the senate, with this difference: In the upper body it is scarcely possible that the Democrats can come into control, although they may add enough to their membership to give the insurgents the balance of power. In detail the senatorial situation is as follows: There are thirty-five new men to go in, including successors to four who have died—Ballinger of Iowa, McEnery of Louisiana, Daniel of Virginia and Senator Elbert Brown of Florida. Swanson has already been appointed to succeed Daniel. Ballinger's successor will be left to the legislature, which will select a progressive. All the Democrats will be followed by men of their own party, with the exception of Purcell of North Dakota. In that state the probabilities are that McCumber will be re-elected, and the other seat will go to Asie J. Gronan, a progressive.

have favored Dix, generally at two to one, with few exceptions. New Jersey, that so often is but an echo of New York, is this year playing a star part on her own hook. This is due to the fact that the Democrats have nominated Woodrow Wilson for governor. In the past the American people have honored their educators, but not by running them for office. If Wilson is elected we may see more college presidents on the firing line. Perhaps it would be no loss if we gave our political economists a chance to put their theories into practice. They certainly could not do worse than the politicians have done.

Professor Swan has come on squarely for progressive policies all along the line. His campaign has been a revelation of direct and candid speech.

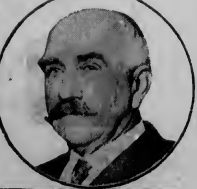

Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican candidate, is an old newspaper man. Mr. Lewis has also declared for some of the progressive policies. The result is in doubt, but Wilson's supporters seem very confident.

In Ohio the Republican managers admit that if the election had been held two weeks ago Harmon would probably have been re-elected. Now they claim the tide is turning in Harding's favor. For one thing, James H. Garfield and the progressives are coming out for the Republican candidate. Neither side is very progressive in this year, and as a consequence the Socialists are said to be making gains. The Democrats claim the state is a big majority.

Beveridge Appealing to Progressives
One of the most spectacular fights in the nation is that in Indiana. Here the contest is over the senatorship. Beveridge is attacking the Payne-Adrich tariff and appealing to progressive of both parties. John W. Kern, his opponent, expects to get the Democratic vote and some quiet support from the stand out Republicans. The outcome is very doubtful, but would seem to favor Kern, as the Democrats now have the governor and legislature. After sweeping the California primaries as an insurgent, Hiram W. Johnson is having another fight with Theodore A. Bell, who was temporary chairman of the last Democratic national convention. Johnson is opposed to the Southern Pacific railroad, and it is thought that for this reason the railroad and stand out politicians may support Bell. Nevertheless Johnson's

The good women of the Fordville Baptist membership are saying they are going to do without new coats—suits this winter and donate their money to a building fund for a new church. Buy your new dresses, girls, so you can look as pretty as possible. In the long run the money for the gospel has to come out of your husband's pocket-book, and if your appearance is sweet and charming, he will give it to you before he knows it. And too, a man enjoys going to church when he can see a good-looking, well-dressed woman. Get him in good humor at church, and he will give you the last cent he can afford. That's a better method than wearing old clothes; merchants cannot give freely to benevolence unless they sell their goods. We believe in the dress-up religion. Old rags make long faces. Who wants to go to church and sit in the midst of a set of women moping in undertones because they feel shabby? A woman is not cheerful when her dress is a back number. Sacrifices for beautiful churches are all right, but isn't it just as well to make them at the dinner table or at the jewelry store?

J. W. Newman, for the past three years secretary of the Kentucky State Fair, and a former State Senator, made his formal announcement Saturday for the Democratic nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture, which nomination will be made some time the coming year, and which office will be filled by election November, 1911. Mr. Newman left Saturday to aid the Porto Rico Government in inaugurating their Insular Fair, and will be absent from Kentucky for a few months. Mr. Newman has always had the farmer's interest at heart, and we hope that they will have an opportunity at the polls to reciprocate for the benefits he has given them.

Did you receive that blue card notifying you about your subscription? This means that we want you back on our list; want your co-operation and good wishes for the News. A Presbyterian minister and his wife, of Louisville, gave a debut dance in honor of their daughter last Friday night. That was quite a step from the church to the ball-room. It was a "coming out" party for the person's daughter in two ways: coming out into society and coming out of the old-time religion.

That suggestion for Christmas? Have you thought how glad your mother would be to receive the News a year? Big brother wouldn't mind it and little sis would feel pretty big to get it every week in her name. What about treating your own self to a year's subscription Christmas?

The hunters are preparing for the greatest onslaught they have ever had, and many will start out next Tuesday for several days' hunt. As yet few farms have been posted against invasion. Quail is plentiful and the sportsmen expect glorious times.

The tobacco buyers began to move out into the country districts last week. Several crops were sold at $9 and $2. A good deal of the crop has been stripped, and as soon as there is a season, they will begin to deliver it.

"This here breeze makes you want more rage, don't it child?" said Aunt Mary Dean, our good old colored friend, late last Thursday afternoon as we were walking down in Cow Heel. Aunt Mary lives on Bishop's Hill, but says if her children weren't in heaven, she would be living in the sticks where she could raise hogs and have a real farm. Aunt Mary has been giving away fried chicken and turkey all her life, and declares that she "aint a bit poorer for it." Every Christmas for fourteen years she has given Mr. A. R. Fisher a baked turkey. Aunt Mary lives just to go to heaven. "If you miss heaven," she said, "you are gone then sure." Aunt Mary will surely go there; she is as good as she is generous, and if she was as white as a lily, the number of her friends could not be greater.

GREAT RESULTS

From Revival at Glen Dean and Fordsville—Increase Pastor's Salary and Will Repair Church.

Dear Bro. Babbage: I promised to send statement to News of my Martin meetings. It was a great opportunity indeed. Bro Jordon Martin's forerunner is a splendid all-round worker in the vineyard. Schollie and wife are great singers.

The additions to the two churches numbered sixty, with many professions that did not join.

Martin is a clear cut gospel preacher with great power. My churches are greatly stimulated and appreciate the pastor's bringing these workers to them. Last, but not all together the least, is the amount they paid to Martin workers. Glen Dean, $220; Fordsville, $340. Total, $560. But some may say, won't this react and hurt the cause? No!

Glen Dean has increased pastor's salary since, and Fordsville is considering remodeling or building a new church-house in the near future.

Our ladies are saying they will do without a consult and put amount into new building. We are profoundly thankful to God for all these blessings. Best wishes from wife and me to the News, and love to all Cloverport.

GOSSIP OF THE AEROPLANES.

Overheard at the Belmont Park Aviation Meet.

BEANS ALSO FLYING HIGH.

When Hoxsey and Johnston Went Up to Light the Stars—One Englishman Through With Flying For the Meis Sport of It—When the Wrights Were "Cranks."

Among those witnessing the flying at Belmont park, New York, is a man who used to be one of the editors of an Ohio newspaper. According to his own confession, his conscience has been giving him some painful twinges ever since he saw the first aeroplane go up the other day.

"When the Wright brothers were making their first experiments with flying out at Dayton everybody got the notion that they were a couple of cranks," he said. "After the first story or two which described what they were doing Ohio newspapers outside of Dayton declined to pay any attention to them."

"The Dayton correspondents used to be very active in sending out stuff, but our office, like many others, got tired of receiving it. It got so that standing orders were issued in our office against printing anything about the Wrights. When a story came in about what they were doing it went to the wastebasket."

"The editor when he received a Wright story would shout, 'Another Wright yarn!' and then the office would give a whoop and crowd about as with an impressive gesture the story was flung away. And, mind you, this was not as much as ten years ago either."

Everything went high at the aviation meet, even lunch counter prices. A man strolled up to the edge of one costly lunch counter and rested his elbow on the ubiquitous.

"Look here," said he. "Do you realize anything as low as 70 cents?"

"Yes," replied the gentlemanly attendant, "perk and onion."

"And no other?" exclaimed the customer.

A small platter was produced in a moment, and as it tilted toward him the man who wanted food lent his scrutiny upon it. He surveyed it carefully and then, looking the attendant straight between the eyes, spoke as follows:

"Here, here. Come around. I ordered a complete dinner of beans. You're three-oh."

A lot of the spectators know what they are up against in the matter of dinner. Hadley was asked whether he expected to fly.

"I can't say really, you know," answered the Englishman. "I've long since got over flying for the sport of the thing. It's a bit of a tragedy—a flight— isn't it?"

"Why can't they cheat about how high they go?" asked one of the sweet things on the lawn.

"Because the barograph won't let them," said the sage with her.

"Well, I'd take a piece of ice up with me and hold it against the foolish thing."

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains down back in both sides, backache, and I couldn't. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. A. F. Vesterhagen, De Forest, Wis.

Another Operation Avoided. I had been suffering from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. A. F. Vesterhagen, De Forest, Wis.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirm the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her free advice is free, and always helpful.

"But the barograph doesn't register the cold," her informant explained; "it's just affected by pressure."

"Then," said she finally, "I'd press the piece of ice against it!"

There is some of the comment overheard one evening when Hoxsey and Johnston, two of the Wright fliers, were fading out of sight in the twilight.

"What's become of the first guy? Twists!"

"Guess they have come up to light the stars."

Just at that minute out popped a star just above the place where Johnston's biplane had disappeared. They came another, then a crowd, finally the Little Dipper. About all the stars that are visible this time of the year were out by the time the rival aviators reached the ground.

A little crowd of newspaper men hurried over to Ralph Johnston when he landed to earth after his long climb into the clouds—his evening sky.

"What kept you so long?" they asked.

"Well, I waited to make sure that Arch Hoxsey wasn't going to give me a lift and I waited a little longer for good luck. At that I beat him to the ground."

"Did you climb higher than Hoxsey?" was the next query.

"Well, if his barograph says I didn't then I'll never trust a barograph again."

As a matter of fact, the judges figured out that Hoxsey's flight over Johnston's by 420 feet, but Johnston did not know that at the time.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

BRYAN AND HILL.

Each Accused the Other of Writing 1904 Platform.

The late David Bennett Hill and W. J. Bryan possessed a high opinion of each other's mental abilities, according to Congressman James T. Lloyd of the Democratic congressional committee.

"At the Democratic national convention in St. Louis in 1904," said Mr. Lloyd, "Mr. Bryan presented a high opinion of the committee on resolutions, the one representing the eastern conservatives and the other the western progressives. Many of the largest Democrats in the nation were on that committee."

The committee worked all afternoon and all night over a platform, each wing of the party fighting every inch of the way. The following morning when the committee adjourned Mr. Hill was met outside the committee room.

"Have you agreed on a platform?" he was asked.

"We have," said the senator.

"Who wrote it?"

"Bryan."

"At the same time some one else stopped Mr. Bryan, who also said the committee was ready to report."

"Who wrote the platform?" he was asked.

"Have Hill," he replied. "And I tell you, Mr. Bryan went on, 'that Hill is one of the strongest men mentally I have ever met.'"

Seven Chinese students have enrolled and are under advisory direction of the Chinese ambassador at Washington. They are B. S. Kuo, M. Y. Loo, C. C. Pao, T. Y. Tang, K. S. Woo, H. W. Koh and Y. H. Tse.

Mexico is represented by Jesus de la R. Fuente of Matadores and F. N. Cardenas of Saltillo.

A Good Move. It is a good idea to have a clean ditch at each side of the road before winter. The other day a farmer plowed a good furrow out of each ditch of the road alongside his farm, and he pulled the dirt over the grade with a road drag. It's a neat thing to do. The dirt put on the grade was not enough to make mud, but enough to open a clear track for the water into each ditch.

POSTAL BANKS STRIKE SNAG.

Trouble Between Postoffice and Treasury Departments.

FIGHT ON CERTIFICATE PLAN.

Treasury Officials Think Pass Book System Better—No Banks Before 1911 and Then Only Experimental Ones. Objections Raised to Hitchcock's Ideas.

It develops upon investigation that most important features for the operation of the postal savings bank system remain to be settled by the board of trustees. It probably will not be before Jan. 1, 1911, that the government will be ready to give the system its first trial in the limited number of second class offices in each state where depositaries are to be established for this trial.

Owing to conflicting statements from official quarters there has been some misunderstanding of the situation affecting the starting of operations. It seems that, after all, the certificate of deposit scheme which has attracted so much attention has not been finally approved.

While Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh is understood to favor the certificate of deposit plan of postmaster General Hitchcock's conception if it be found feasible after further investigation, subordinate officials of the treasury department are holding out for the old fashioned pass book. At least they hold that there are radical features of the new plan which require careful consideration before the official stamp of approval is placed upon it. These treasury skeptics are leaving the subject alone.

The principal objections raised to the certificate plan are four in number. The points involved are as to the consistency with the provisions of the postal bank law itself, the liability to loss of certificates in cases where depositors become possessed of a large number of them, the tendency to cash certificates even when necessity does not compel it, owing to the ease of converting them into cash, and the inherent computing complications which might deprive depositors of their just rights. To start with, the first objection raised by the treasury experts is this:

The law provides that no person shall have an account at more than one postoffice, but no person can have more than $100 in a single month and that he shall not have a total deposit of more than $500. It is argued that under the certificate system as it stands at present it would be hard to keep check on the person who sought to establish more than one account. He might buy a certificate at one office and later buy one at a nearby office.

The second objection is that a depositor would in time accumulate a large bunch of certificates of small denomination; some of them he might carry around with him; losses would be frequent, and the banking good of the masses through the issuance of duplicates would be undermined.

The most important objection, it is declared, is the third on the list. It is pointed out that one of the main purposes of the postal savings banks is to encourage thrift among the working classes, who ordinarily do not purchase private banks. The case is cited of the man who carries some of the certificates in his pocket, where as pass books are usually kept at home except when deposited or made.

Many times, it is declared, a depositor would be tempted to drop in at the postoffice after working hours and cash one of his certificates for no other purpose perhaps than to buy cigars or drinks when he would not think of drawing out money if the convenient equivalent were not burning holes in his pockets.

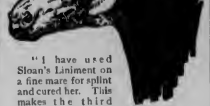

Finally there is the matter of interest. The existing scheme provides for the issuance of certificates of various denominations, from one dollar up, the smaller being convertible into one of the larger denominations. But, it is pointed out, each certificate shows its own accrued interest. When several of small denomination were exchanged for one of larger denomination the interest would die only from the issuance of the latter. A fifty dollar certificate, for instance, is stated by way of example, could not very well be marked to show just how long interest had run on each dollar or five dollars of the aggregate.

Then, again, the depositor with a $50 or $100 or $500 certificate, if he wished to draw only part of his deposit, must take out a new certificate, thus losing cash interest on the balance.

That there is a good deal of feeling between officials of the postoffice and treasury departments respectively over the situation cannot be denied. At the postoffice department it is declared that if there is unreasonable delay in putting the postal saving system in operation the fault will be with the treasury officials, who waited until all the preliminary plans had been mapped out by the committee designated by postmaster General Hitchcock before showing any interest.

On the other side it is intimated that the postoffice department went ahead precipitately and that the treasury department was not invited to have a representative on the committee that worked out the scheme of operations.

Cured Thrush.
Mr. R. W. Patten, of Bristol, Ind., writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment for thrush and myself. It is the best Liniment in the world. I cured one of my horses of thrush. His feet were rotten; the frogs came out; he laid down most of the time. I thought he would die, but I used the Liniment as directed and he never lies down in the daytime now."

The Famous Rayo

Does Not Strain the Eyes

Don't use a small, concentrated light over one shoulder. It puts an unequal strain on your eyes. Use a diffused, soft, mellow light that cannot flicker, that equalizes the work of the eyes, such as the Rayo Lamp gives, and avoid eye strain.

The Rayo is designed to give the best light, and it does.

It is a strong, durable shade-holder that is held firm and true. A new burner gives added strength. Made of solid brass and finished in nickel. Easy to keep polished. The Rayo is low priced, but no other lamp gives a better light at any price.

EFFICIENT DIRT ROAD IMPLEMENT

Construction and Methods of Using a Plank Drag.

WORKS BEST ON MOIST SOIL

Better Results Achieved by First Crowning Roadway With a Blade Grader—How to Operate the Machine Successfully.

How to construct and use one of the most useful and handy devices for improving earth roads is described in the Breeder's Gazette by Professor L. V. Chase of the Nebraska experiment station, who says:

The split log drag, or, as it is commonly called, the King drag, is without doubt the best implement for keeping roads in shape and in many instances is as efficient as any other implement in the construction of earth roads.

The King drag can be constructed of either a split log or a plank, but in Nebraska the plank is much easier to obtain than the log; hence this brief description pertains to the construction from planks.

Select a good yellow pine, ash or oak plank two inches thick, twelve inches wide and fourteen feet long. Cut this in two at an angle so that one edge of each piece is seven feet six inches long and the other edge is six feet six inches long. Spike to the back and along the center of each of these planks a two-inch by six-inch piece, which reinforces the plank. Bore the holes for the cross stakes about twenty-six inches apart and four inches from each end with a two and one-half inch auger, using care to keep the auger perpendicular to the plank. The two inch by four inch brace at the front end should start from the middle of the rear plank and drop to the bottom part of the front plank. The blade, which is generally made of stock cut steel strip, should be given the proper cutting slope by placing a wedge shaped strip between it and the plank. One end of the chain is fastened to a cross stake, and the other passes through a hole in the plank and is held in position by means of a pin.

The use of the drag is more satisfactory if the road has first been crowned with a blade grader, but whenever this is not convenient and the traffic is not too heavy the road may be gradually brought to a crown by means of the drag.

The surface of the average country road should be covered in one round with the drag. The horse should be driven on the inside of the wheel track and the other on the outside, the drag being set by means of the chain so that it is running at an angle of forty-five degrees with the wheel track and working the earth toward the center of the road. In the spring, when the roads are more likely to be rutty and soft, it is generally better to go over the road twice and in some places often.

The drag should be doored with boards which are separated by open spaces of sufficient width so that the dirt which falls will rattle through, and yet they should be close enough so that the driver can move about upon the drag quite freely.

To insure the successful operation of the drag it is necessary for the driver to use careful judgment. Sometimes it is essential that the blade be driven so that the dirt will cut roots and weeds, while at other times the front edge should not bear too heavily upon the surface, as it will dig out a soft place which would be better if left undisturbed. This regulation of the cutting edge can be accomplished by the driver turning back and forth or to the right and left on the drag.

If the road is to be crowned with the drag it is often well to plow a light furrow along the sides and work this loosened dirt to the center. On roads with heavy traffic the drag should be used much oftener and with more care than on roads with light traffic.

The distance from the drag at which the team is hitched affects the cutting. A long hitch permits the blade to cut deeper than a short hitch; likewise a heavy doubletree will cause the cutting edge to settle deeper than a light one.

There are very few periods of the year when the use of the drag does not benefit the road, but it does the best work when the soil is moist and yet not too sticky. This is frequently within a half day's time after a rain. When the earth is in this state it works the best, and the effects of working it are fully as beneficial as at any other time. The Nebraska soils when mixed with water and thoroughly worked become remarkably tough and impervious to rain, and if compacted in this condition they become extremely hard. This action of the soil in becoming so hard and smooth not only helps to shed the water during a rain, but also greatly retards the formation of dust.

So much has been written and said pertaining to the great benefits from the use of the road drag that many people beginning the use of it become discouraged before they are well started. They should not feel this, as it often takes a whole season for the road to become properly puddled and leveled to withstand the rains and traffic. After a road has been worked with a drag only a short time it is not well to expect it to stand up to heavy traffic during a continued damp spell without being affected. However, it will take far heavier traffic than most earth roads receive to more than scuff up the surface. During the four years that the writer has observed the road shown in the illustrations only once has it ever become so soft that teams were not hauling a ton and a half of coal in each load over it. Even in the fall of 1920 teams were delivering 2,500 pounds of coal at a load to the university farm before the roads became frozen.

It is not well to consider the benefits from a good road as solely confined to heavy traffic, for there is no doubt that the time saved to light vehicles and the greater pleasure derived from their use over good roads for far pass the economy in heavy hauling.

THE SAME ROAD AFTER THREE YEARS DRAGGING

While driving over well-crowned smooth roads the team does not have to follow the usual rut no slapping has to be made for momentum in the surface, and it matters not whether one of two horses are being driven.

three rounding teaspoonsful of baking powder. Add one cup of milk to the butter and sugar, alternately, with the flour mixture; lastly, beat in the whites of one dozen eggs, beaten dry. Bake in layers and put together with a boiled frosting. One half the recipe may be baked in two layer cake pans about 11 by 17 inches. The full recipe makes a very large cake. The cake is of very delicate texture. Decorate with the split halves of almond and raisins.

UNA A REMARKABLE FISH

Swagging Musketeer of the Sea is the Largest of the Game or Bony Fishes

Charles Frederick Holder, the California naturalist, thus describes that remarkable fish the tuna: "The tuna is a pelagic fish, a free lance, an ocean rover, a sort of swagging musketeer of the sea, the largest of what may be termed the game or bony fishes, attaining a maximum weight of nearly 2,000 pounds and an approximate length of fourteen feet or more. Such a fish is very exceptional, though specimens weighing 1,500 pounds have been taken on the New England coast. I once entered a school in a big launch. The school divided to port and starboard as we passed through in 1 and I had a view of one of the fishes that appeared to be more than half as long as the boat.

"These fishes spend the winter in warm latitudes, and migrate north as far as the mouth of the St. Lawrence. They are found in the Mediterranean, and north, to the Lofoden island; yet they are not of the order of migratory fish, as Santa Catalina, have failed to take them with the rod. Even here there is a stretch of but eight miles or so, where they can be satisfactorily played and taken with rod and reel.

"This region lies on the north side of Santa Catalina, from the Rocking Point, and to the east as many more, facing the north, and generally smooth—more like a Scottish loch than a falling ground 20 miles out to sea."

NEW FACT ABOUT LINCOLN

TOLD BY HIS BODYGUARD.

Did Guard Leave His Post the Night Lincoln Was Shot?

Colonel William H. Crook, who was Lincoln's bodyguard, brings up a new point regarding the president's assassination in his recently published book of reminiscences, "Through Five Administrations." Colonel Crook writes: "I have often wondered how the president of the guard who accompanied the president to the theater on the night of the 14th has never been disclosed. So far as I know, it was not even investigated by the police department. Yet had he done his duty I believe President Lincoln would not have been murdered by Booth. The man was John Parker. It was the custom for the guard who accompanied the president to the theater to remain in the little passageway outside the box that passageway through which Booth entered Mr. Buckingham, who was the doorman at Ford's theater, remembers that a chair was placed there for the guard on that evening of the 14th. Whether Parker occupied it at all I do not know. If he did he left it almost immediately, for he confessed to me the next day that he went to a seat at the front of the first gallery so that he could see the play. There is very probable that the fact that there was no one on guard may have determined the time of the attack."

Know She Was Right.

An auction was announced of the library and household effects of a man who had once entertained in a lavish way, and among the persons who went to the sale were many who had enjoyed the fallen family's hospitality. When a set of after-dinner cups was put up for sale, one of the bidders, who proceeded with the sale, said: "There are only five of those, not six." The auctioneer consulted his catalogue and replied: "Thank you; you are right," and proceeded with the sale. Then the woman whispered to the one next to her: "I knew I was right, because my husband dropped one of that set the last time we dined there."
